

Ryan Taylor

Ryan Taylor is an architect who founded Ryan Taylor Architects, LLC in 2002 to focus exclusively on residential projects: new construction, additions and renovations.

Taylor is active in community, legislative and building code issues. He serves as the appointed representative of Georgia architects in the adoption and amendment of state building codes.

In addition to his skill set as an architect, Taylor is also a certified HERS Rater, an HVAC designer and a Certified Distance Education Instructor. He's frequently invited to speak at community and industry events and his comments have been widely published. The work of RTA includes projects in the United States, the Caribbean and Africa.
