SMC		World Scouting Movement	To recognize and honor the century of parallel goals held by Scouts and building codes with a particular focus on sustainability. To bring together Scouting and The ICC to mutual benefit by; 1. Creating a viable career path for youths into trades; 2. Increasing the number of youths with solid technical knowledge in Codes and Standards; 3. Merging practical knowledge of sustainability in nature and in homes; 4. Expanding the word International in both Scouting and International Code Council; 5. Building a natural relationship with ICC and WSM/BSA/GSA in increasing diversity in Trades,	ongoing	Chris McWhite	cmcwhite@me.com
GMC	2018	Conformity Assessment Best Practices	To develop a best practices document for ensuring the quality of construction products. The Task Group will investigate regulations and policies related to certification of building products, plant inspections, ensuring proper installation, and other measures that can be implemented by regulators around the world to ensure safety in the built environment. The resulting publication will be a resource for all concerned with the safety and performance of the built environment worldwide.	In Task Group	Nick Hill	nickhill@boinz.org.nz
GMC		Global Cooperation in Code enforcement	To help governments and regulatory bodies avoid duplication in their code development efforts by drawing on existing resources – specifically, consensus-based codes and standards. The activities of the Task Group could potentially include the implementation of a global inspection exchange program, but the first order of business will be for the Group to define the scope of their project.	In Task Group
GMC	2018	Sister Chapters: International and Volunteer US Chapters	Will link established US-based ICC chapters with newly-established chapters outside the US to help international chapters with becoming financially secure and self-sufficient. The initiative will begin with a pilot project that is initially being managed/overseen by Global Membership Council members Lynn Underwood and Imad Eldurubi, who will identify the participants and define the scope of the program in a repeatable format.	In Progress	Lynn Underwood

GMC	2018	Addressing Skills Shortages	To create a forum for sharing the experiences of various jurisdictions from around the world in recruiting and training the next generation of building officials, as this is a common concern of current building officials worldwide. There are already enough pertinent examples and anecdotes from New Zealand to share in an article, and the effort would benefit from coordination with the Building Membership Council as well as the ICC Safety 2.0 initiative aimed at high school students and military families. Whether this becomes a series of articles or a different type of forum will be defined by a new Task Group.		Nick Hill	nickhill@boinz.org.nz
